

The myblog interface

Once you have successfully signed up for an account, you will be taken to the Welcome Page, which shows you how to find your blog and change your profile picture. We are going to navigate through the different areas on the page to get you familiar with the page set up and how to find certain functions that will enable you to create your posts and set up the design of your blog.

The screenshot shows the myblog.arts interface. At the top, there is a dark blue header with the myblog.arts logo on the left and a search bar on the right. Below the header, a white box labeled "The Tabs" points to a row of navigation tabs: Home, Help, Blogs, Members, Groups, and Forums. The Home tab is highlighted. Below the tabs, the main content area is divided into several sections. On the left, there is a "Featured" section with a post titled "Idea Generation Processes – How do you convert ideas into finished..." by Shelley O'Hare. Below this is a "Recent" section with a row of seven small image thumbnails. On the right side, there is a user profile for "Vija Skangale" with a "Log Out" button. Below the profile is a "workflow" section with the text "online portfolios now available to all UAL students and staff" and the URL "workflow.arts.ac.uk". Further down is a "Skillshare" section with the text "Searchable skills directory Find project collaborators Grow your network". At the bottom right, there is a "Latest Skillshares" section with a list of items: "Photo shoot", "Intern wanted for new awareness platform, Diversity Matters!", "Maps & Data visualization", and "View all...". A red arrow points from a white box labeled "1. Change your profile picture" to the profile picture area of the Vija Skangale user.
